The Seventh of August.

Monday, August 7th, 1911, was a great day to the children of Crittenden county. This being the day set apart for all the common schools of this county to begin. We believe that our efficient Supt., Travis, did the right thing when he named the same day for all schools to begin. We believe he had the idea in his mind when Mesdames Mildred and Glenn he named that day, that the common Smith of Atlanta, Georgia and school should be true to its name. A common day for all schools to begin. The same chances for all, the same instruction and each school taught by a worthy teacher.
